Hold-up for champ Cheryl over sticker

Leader Reporter

Reigning South African Women's Table Tennis Champion Cheryl Roberts, was questioned for about twenty minutes at Louis Botha Airport on Sunday, because her hand luggage bore "Boycott the All Blacks" stickers.

Ms Roberts had arrived from Port Elizabeth where she had participated in the non-racial South African Table Tennis Championship at the Galvendale Community Centre held last week.

She caused a flurry when she entered the airport terminus with the stickers prominently displayed on her hand luggage.

"I could feel all eyes on me and before long a stream of white men were approaching me and asking me why I had the stickers and where I had got them from" she told The Leader.

Just as Ms Roberts was about to leave the building one of the men who had been speaking to her pulled out his identification card, to show he was a policeman and asked her to accompany him to the "charge office".

In the office, the policeman who identified himself as Warrant Officer Van Zyl, questioned her about the origins of the stickers, who was behind the anti-tour campaign and asked for personal details.

About twenty minutes later, and after apparently receiving instructions from his senior officer, W/O Van Zyl allowed Ms Roberts to leave.

A spokesperson for the South African Railway Police, Colonel Sholtz, confirmed that Ms Roberts had been questioned at the airport with regards to the stickers.

He told The Leader that she was selling stickers at the airport and since airport regulations did not permit the sale of anything on its premises, Ms Roberts had been detained for questioning.

307 RETRENCHED AS COROBRIK CLOSES

Leader Reporter

Three hundred and seven workers of the Corobrik factory in Red Hill near Durban were retrenched on Monday this week.

The brick factory has retained 27 of the staff to maintain the factory.

In a shock move on Monday, the factory retrenched the workers and brought production at the plant to a halt.

"We have managed to place 15 Redhill workers at other factories and it is our policy to give preference to retrenched staff when filling any vacancies" the factory's managing director Mr Andrew said.

Mr Andrew said the factory had stockpiled about 35 million plaster bricks at present, and this was sufficient to meet demand for the present.

He also said the National Union of Brick and Allied Workers had been informed of the retrenchments and that the workers were paid as agreed by the Union.

NCA PLEA ON BUS SHELTERS

The Natal Commuters Association which has persuaded the Durban City Council to erect shelters at a number of bustops in Chatsworth and Merewent, has appealed to members of the public to refrain from damaging these structures.

According to the president of the NCA, Mr J. Ramdhani, a number of bus shelters were recently found to have been damaged by motorists who apparently hit into the structures.

He added that in Merewent there were several instances of damaged shelters and in some cases, the material used to build the structures was missing.

Mr Randhani also pointed out that in Dharwar Road, Merebank, where the City Council has now agreed to erect a shelter, the original structure was damaged by vandals about two years ago.

Phoenix Council houses sold out

Would be buyers of Council houses in Phoenix were this week told that all available houses in the area have been allocated.

A number of people who could not raise the deposits when houses were originally offered to them have now been able to do so, but the houses have in the meantime been re-allocated, the Council informed them.

The PWC however maintains that there are still vacant houses.

According to the Durban City Council there are only about 70 vacant houses in the sprawling township but these are under the control of the House of Delegates which will give the houses to resettlement cases.

The City Council is therefore unable to allocate any houses to those people who had been unable to buy the houses when they were first offered to them but now have the means to do so.

The Minister in charge of Indian Housing, Mr Baldeo Dookie, confirmed that the House of Delegates was in possession of a large number of houses in Phoenix but said they were already set aside for resettlement cases from areas like Inanda.

He said there were 21 two-bedroomed houses in Unit 21, 10 three-bedroomed houses and 24 one-bedroomed units for rental occupation.

Replies

He added that all 21, two-bedroomed units, five of the three bedroomed houses and all the available rental units had already been allocated and his department was awaiting replies from the prospective buyers and tenants.

Mr Dookie said that the units that his department had at present were not sufficient for the needs of displaced persons because in Inanda alone there were 860 families who have to make way for black occupation and who will need to be rehoused.

But a spokesperson for the Phoenix Working Committee told The Leader that far more units than indicated by the authorities were lying vacant in the various sections of Phoenix.

"In one case, a house in Unit Four was left vacant for almost two years and only recently allocated to a former SAIC member" said the PWC spokesman who added that when questioned about the manner in which the house was allocated, the City Council merely stated that the occupant had been unable to make up his mind as to whether or not he wanted the house.

MOVIE REVIEW

Rocky IV

In 1985, Ivan Drago (Dolph Lundgren), an immensely muscular 6-foot 5, 261-pound Soviet boxer, arrives in the United States with his wife Ludmilla (Brigitte Nielsen), and a team of trainers from the USSR and Cuba. His manager, Nicolai Koloff (Michael Pataki), takes every opportunity to promote Drago's athleticism as a hallmark of Soviet superiority. Motivated by patriotism and an innate desire to prove himself, Apollo Creed (Carl Weathers) challenges Drago to an exhibition bout. Rocky (Sylvester Stallone) has reservations, but agrees to train Apollo.

During a press conference regarding the match, hostility is created between Apollo and Drago's respective camps. The exhibition takes place at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas. Apollo enters the ring, wearing his old Uncle Sam outfit, in an over-the-top patriotic entrance with James Brown performing "Living in America". The bout starts tamely with Apollo landing several punches that have no effect on the Russian. It soon turns serious though, as Drago beats Apollo mercilessly. Apollo is in critical condition by the end of the first round. Rocky and Apollo's trainer Duke (Tony Burton) plead with him to give up, but Apollo refuses to do so, and tells Rocky not to stop the fight. The second round doesn't go any better, and despite Duke begging Rocky to throw in the towel, he honors Apollo's wish. This turns out to have fatal consequences as Drago beats Apollo so badly that he drops dead in the ring. In the immediate aftermath, Drago displays no sense of remorse commenting to the assembled media: "If he dies... he dies."

Incensed by Drago's cold indifference and feeling a deep sense of guilt, Rocky decides to avenge Apollo's death by agreeing to fight Drago in Russia on Christmas Day in an unsanctioned 15-round bout. He flies to the USSR without Adrian, setting up his training base in Krasnogourbinsk with only Duke and brother-in-law Paulie (Burt Young) to accompany him. To prepare for the fight, Drago uses very high-tech equipment and a team of trainers and doctors monitoring him every moment. Rocky, on the other hand, throws heavy logs, chops down trees, pulls an overloaded snow sleigh, jogs in heavy snow and treacherous icy conditions and climbs a mountain. Adrian (Talia Shire) shows up unexpectedly to give Rocky her support after initially refusing to travel to Russia because of her doubts on his fighting chances, resulting in Rocky's training having an added focus.

Drago is introduced with an elaborate, patriotic ceremony that puts the Russian crowd squarely on Drago's side, as Rocky is booed by all in attendance. In contrast to his fight with Apollo, Drago immediately goes on the offensive and Rocky takes a fierce pounding. Rocky comes back toward the end of the second and silences the Russian crowd by landing a strong right hook that cuts Drago just below his left eye. While Drago is visibly shaken, Rocky is fired up and assaults Drago, which continues even after the bell rings. While Duke and Paulie cheer Rocky for his heroism, they remind him that Drago is not a machine, but a man. Ironically, Drago comments that Rocky "is not human, he is like a piece of iron" with his own corner reprimanding him for being "weak" in comparison to the "small American."

The two boxers continue to hit each other over the next dozen rounds, with Rocky holding his ground despite Drago's powerful punches. His resilience rallies the previously hostile Soviet crowd to his side, which unsettles Drago to the point that he shoves Koloff off the ring for berating his performance. Rocky finally takes out Drago in the 15th and last round, winning by knockout to the shock of the Soviet Politburo members watching the fight. A bloody and battered Rocky gives a victory speech, acknowledging the mutual disdain at first between himself and the crowd. He says it is like the wider disdain between Russians and Americans, but that he and the crowd have come to respect and admire each other during the course of the fight. Rocky adds that the crowd has seen "two guys killin' each other, but I guess that's better than 20 million" who might die if the Cold War turned hot. Rocky finally declares, "If I can change, and you can change, then everybody can change!" The Soviet General Secretary stands and passionately applauds Rocky, and his aides follow suit. Rocky ends his speech by wishing his son a Merry Christmas, and throws his arms into the air in victory as the crowd applauds.

Indian Vermicelli Milk Pudding/ Kheer or Seviyan/Simui er payesh/ kheer Recipe

Vermicelli Kheer or Semiya Payasam is a sweet dish which is made with vermicelli or seyaian, milk & sugar. It is made in every Indian household for special occasions like birthdays, weddings or other festive occasions. Vermicelli Kheere is a very tasty sweet dish, and healthy too.

Ingredients

- Vermicelli - 1 cup coarsely broken
- Milk (Whole) - 5 cups Or Half N Half - 3 cups
- Almond - 10 roughly chopped
- Butter/Melted Ghee - Ghee 4 tbsp
- Cardamom pods - 2 crushed
- Cashew - 10 roughly chopped
- Pista - 5 roughly chopped
- Sugar - 3/4 cup

Serves : 4 people

Preperation Time : 30 Minute(s)

Cooking Time : 1 Hour

How to Prepare

Heat 2 table spoons of ghee in a pan and lightly fry the vermicelli till golden. Remove and set aside.

Heat the remaining ghee in a separate pan and fry the nuts and raisins lightly and add the fried vermicelli and mix very gently.

Now take the milk in a large heavy bottomed pan and add sugar.

Bring to a boil, add the vermicelli mixture and let the liquid return to a boil, stirring constantly .

Reduce the heat and simmer until the vermicelli becomes soft and your pudding looks thick.

Serving Tips : Serve warm or chilled .

Notes : You can add some extra nuts on it to decorate the pudding.

Remember Clover Beach

Ishaan Blunden: the wooden stairs

Talmon Horner: this was inmy opinion one of the safest beaches to swim in...there was very little backwash as it was pretty well level..60/80s

Ishaan Blunden: that is true

Kausalee Naidoo: what about the blue bottles. all time favourite beach, we often took a walk from home to beach.Also loved to go double decker bus from Alice Street to beach.

Navin Singh: Anyone have any photos of the Durban Indian Surf Life-saving Club? Please post if you do.

Ishaan Blunden: ok. will need to find it, I do have 1 some where.

Kausalee Naidoo: now you opening a can of worms.L.O.L..

Ishaan Blunden: and the pots of food, lol

Kausalee Naidoo: sand and all,tin fish sandwiches,now the modern kids don't eat them,fishy breath .We had special beach blankets,gosh I do miss those days.

Ishaan Blunden: No crying now Kausalee

Pamela Jagesar: Kausalee Naidoo, went to the beach during the xmas holiday, insisted that the day would not be completed without tin fish sandwiches, my mum complied by making the best tin fish sandwich ever, rounded the day off nicely, the children ate them too.lol

Vish Singh: Yes we had some good times there and the club house above My late dear friend Charan Singh who was a life saver there had many parties there and we would rock the nite away He was awarded Life Saver of the Year and I think the first non white Quite an achievement during the 80s Rest in Peace my Friend

Shiraz Omar: Lots of good memories but was segregation that killed us in those days

Dave Naidoo: I remember the chaos...everyone scrambling to find any type of container, the aunties in saris going crazy hitching up their saris in absolute frenzy, life guards trying their utmost to keep every safe, children screaming TOTAL CHAOS...guess why ! SARDINE RUN

Jai Narsai-Rubens: even though it was a small section of the beach everyone went and enjoyed themselves cramped up with hope for one day to be able to use all the facilities.

Kausalee Naidoo: enjoyed easter monday festivities at the beach.so much of fun with spots and highlights were sarrie race and tug-a=war.

Gloria Abrahams: Trained as a lifesaver and patrolled this beautiful beach with the Meths. Such good memories. Kaus I remember Easter Monday sports very clearly and those wooden stairs too Ishaan. Sadly our beach is no more Cheryl Bissessor Bhana: We had to go early to get a good spot although, eventually we ended up packed like sardines! Lol Tinfish sandwiches and cool aid! And...we still found space to build sandcastles!!!!

Suneal Singh: and we burnt really well too

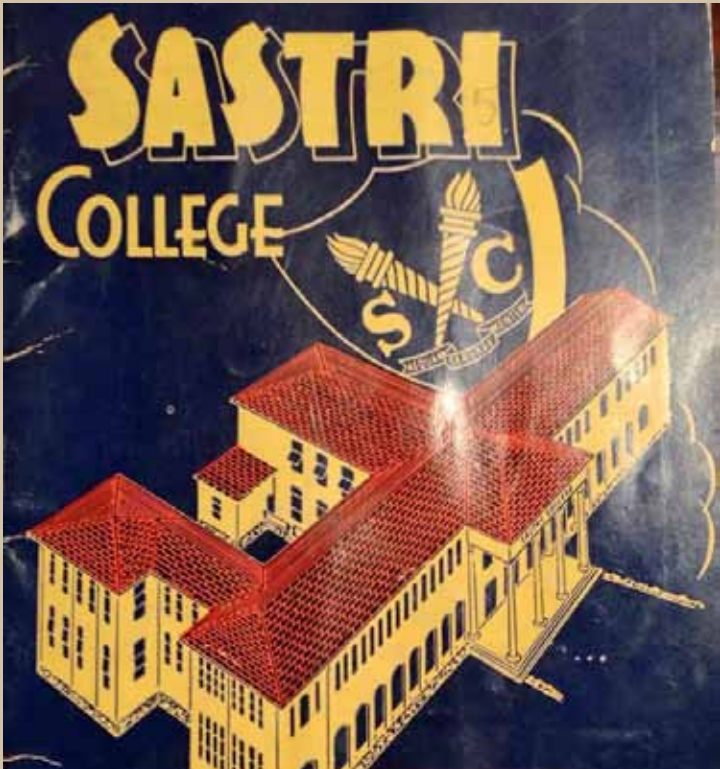

Cheryl Bissessor Bhana: True Suneal...and those days who could afford sunscreen!!! In fact I thought only Whites used it!!!! Lol

Suneal Singh: Honestly it did not even occur to us...there was a word used " Karia" derogivative maybe LOL

Cheryl Bissessor Bhana: I remember that word Suneal! Lol

Suneal Singh: I always wondered why I could not find a brown one to match my skin lol

Gloria Abrahams: Suneal you are a ripper my brother. I use to go home navy blue. For true!

BROTHERS IN VICTORY

By RABI GOBIND

The Moonsamy brothers, Ravi (19 years) and Reni (15 years) played some exciting golf to win the Natal junior golf tournament in their respective divisions.

Ravi played brilliantly to chalk-up his winning score of 77 and win the under-20 tournament from Mervyn Joy who score 78 whilst Marshal Reddy finished third with 79.

The tournament was staged by the natal Golf Association on two different days at both the Papwa Sewgolum and Windsor Park courses.

In the under-13 tournament held at the Mashu course of Windsor Park, Clive Maharaj was the winner on a gross score of 34 but the rising star of the tournament was five year old Mervin Reddy who chalked up a gross score of 38.

The Under-16 and under-20 tournaments played at the Papwa Sewgolum course produced some encouraging golf. A large number of young golfers participated and professional coach, Sadha Ponsamy, who had put in a lot of hard work in organizing the tournament was full of praise for the junior golfers.

Ravi's younger brother, mastered the blistering conditions to score a remarkable gross total of 78 to win the under 16 section from a very game Mervyn Puckree who finished with a score of 83.

Mr Ponsamy, in announcing that the next junior tourney will be held during the Christmas holidays, invited all interested young golfers to attend his coaching classes so that he could help them improve their game

CURRENT ADVERTS AND NEWS

'Curries Fountain' & 'Making of a Place' Book Launch

On Tuesday 04 March 2014 at the DUT Art Gallery in what was once the heart of Warwick Avenue, these two stand-out book were officially launched to the public.

Coinciding with the book launch, there was also an exhibition of historic and heart-wrenching photographs and maps of a once vibrant 'mixed use' area known as Warwick Avenue.

A healthy turnout of interested members of the public, academics, ex-sportspeople and ex-residents made for it an evening of awareness for those that have never experience this area and it's people and, nostalgia for those that have.

The authors, Leonard Rosenberg, Sam Moodley and Goolam Vahed have lots to be proud of as these books well-document the history of these 2 iconic locations in our City.

The books can be bought directly from Adams Bookshop in both West Street and Musgrave.

YOUR family history in the Casbah!

Please do consider sending us photo's, documents, year-books, brochures etc., of your family, your school, work, family member's sporting life, Curries Fountain, Grey Street, First Ave, Magazine Barracks, Cato Manor etc. for documenting and possibly publishing in 'The Casbah' newspaper and/or the Casbah archives. If you have these precious 'old' photos and documents in a bag or packet 'under the bed' or 'in the cupboard', I can assure you that they will rot and your family's history will most likely disappear without a trace! All original's will be scanned by ourselves and returned to you intact. In our possession, these digital copies will now live forever and we will ensure that people's legacy and events of days gone-by will continue to be spoken about well into the future.
