AMBITIOUS PLAN FOR DURBAN OLD MARKET SITE

Council Lays Down Stiff Conditions for Developers

A drastic change in the offing in the Grey Street Complex following the City Council's decision to sell the site of the Old Indian Market and Durban Men's Home subject to certain stringent requirements.

The area which lies between Queen, Victoria and Russell Streets has been proclaimed a free trade area under the Group Areas Act and development is not restricted to White entrepreneurs. Nevertheless, it will be a bold entrepreneur from the Black community who will come up with the kind of money needed to develop the area according to the specifications laid down by the City Council..

Amongst the provisions laid down by the council with regards to the site is the establishment of a market hall covering 3 000 square metres at ground floor level.

Provision

The developer is expected to make provisions within the hall for accommodation of the existing tenant in the Bulk Sales Hall/Fish Market, at the Warwick Avenue shopping complex. As the area surrounding the site which is being offered for sale is presently "environmentally harsh" with a lack of open spaces, planting and good quality street furniture, the City Council expects the new development to be very attractive so that it will be a catalyst for improvement of the surrounding area.

For this reason the new developers will have to set aside viable open areas totalling at 2 000sqm over the western area and along the Queen, Russell and Victoria Street frontages, suitably landscaped for urban use and integrated with sidewalks, hawker areas etc.

Developers

These spaces will have to provide "physical" and "visual" relief and will have to be maintained and cleaned at the developers expense. A hawker trading area with provision of fixed serviced areas within the "Open Areas" will also have to be provided by the developers will have to again maintain and clean these areas.

In addition to these the developers will have to make adequate provisions for parking in the form of an underground parkade and they will also have to develop the link road that cuts through the side and will have to be responsible for the cost of providing lighting, footpaths, kerbing, drainage, foundation works, ducting for services and all surface treatment.

Whilst the developers are expected to bear the brunt of transforming the site into a modern sophisticated centre the City Council will also do its bit to improve the area.

Footbridge

The Council will construct an elevated pedestrian footbridge providing a link from Berea Road Station and various bus termini in the vicinity of Russell Street to this site. The Council will also undertake the widening of Queen Street along the southern boundary of the site.

Having laid down these basic guidelines for the development of the site the Council wants the private sector to make an input as to what other provisions should be included in the development of the site. For this reason all interested parties have been invited to attend a discussion with Council officials on 5 November.

TAJ MAHAL LAYS IT ON IN LAVISH STYLE

Durban's famous restaurant, the Delhi, that had seen better days has undergone a complete transformation. Expenditure of R200 000 has turned it into a place of elegance and class.

The old Delhi Restaurant in Grey Street, which has been taken over by the Paruk family, has been renamed the Taj Mahal.

The restaurant upstairs has been completely revamped and given a facelift at great deal of care and imagination.

The interior has been changed into a picture from the Arabian Nights. Ornate arches are emphasized throughout.

The walls and ceilings of the interior are encrusted with a frosted snow appearance and the colour-scheme of pink, gold and white enhances the classy appearance.

Last Saturday night was the gala opening of the restaurant where the glitterati was reminiscent of the local Who's Who. Guest were treated to a sumptuous banquet followed by a stage performance of Pakistani musicians led by the extremely capable Rasheed Khurtawalla.

The meal, presented in buffet style, consisted of chicken tikka, haleem, spicy rice with prawns, kebabs, a variety of savouries and a specially prepared punch bowl.

Seating and table arrangements is done in a way to create a feeling of spaciousness. If the fare, entertainment wise and cuisine wise matches standards set at last weekend's function, the Taj Mahal is bound to be a crowd puller.

LAC MEN CALL FOR MOBILE UNIT

Two Coloured Local Affairs Committee members have called on the Durban City Council to sponsor a caravan to serve a a mobile unit from which services could be provided to the residents of Austerville and Wentworth.

The suggestion has come from Mr Morris Fynn and Mr Hector Henry who feel that the mobile unit would save residences of the two areas, the inconvenience of travelling to town to the City Treasurer's office. Such a unit would take care of rent and electricity payments and other administrative matters.

The two LAC men pointed out that recently developed areas like Chatsworth and Isipingo had offices for administrative and local affairs matters yet Wentworth and Austerville which have very dense populations had no such facility. They also pointed out that at present they were using the offices of local business – an arrangement which is inconvenient for both the company and the LAC members.

“Moreover we have to often use our homes for consultations, phone calls and emergency matters” Mr Morris and Mr Henry pointed out adding that the mobile unit could serve as a base speedy communication between the community and the local police station, ambulance division and other services in times of crisis.

They urged the City Council to support their proposal and sponsor the purchase of the caravan for the mobile unit.

HIGH PRICES DAMPER ON FIREWORKS

DIWALI in South Africa which had lost some of its colour because of the ban on fireworks for the past 10 years will be celebrated in traditional style this year with crackers once again being available.

But, despite the fact that people are once again free to celebrate the “Festival of Lights” with the burst of colourful fireworks, the high price has forced people to buy much small quantities.

Mr K. Gosai, a fireworks dealer, told The Leader that because of the rand – dollar exchange rate the cost of importing fireworks was very high.

As a result the public was having to pay high prices for them.

He predicted that despite the lifting of the ban the excitement of Diwali of yesteryears will not be evident this year because of small quantities people were buying and because the big noisemakers' like thunder cannons are still banned.

The average price of fireworks, Mr Gosai said, were selling at about 40 cents each for “fountains” whilst a pack of 6 “starlights” sell for about rand.

In the years prior to the ban starlights sold for five cents each.

CUT PROFIT

But Mr S.A. Gandhi, a dealer who is determined that the excitement and sparkle of Diwali, is recaptured, has decided to sell fireworks at a very low price even though it means cutting profits to minimum.

“For ten years we have missed fireworks. This means that youngsters who are 12 years do not know what a Diwali with fireworks is all about” he said adding that for this reason he had decided to sell fireworks at the cheapest price possible to recapture the atmosphere of Diwali.

A number of people interviewed said that they may buy one or two packs of “crackers and sparklers for the children” as they saw their friends with fireworks they too demanded them.

“Personally, I am against buying fireworks at exorbitant prices. To get a decent quantity and to really have fun you need at least R30 to R40 worth of fireworks.

“I would rather spend the money on buying clothes or something more worthwhile for the kids” was the last word from Mrs Mala Govender, of Chatsworth.

YOUTH GROUP'S STUDY PROJECT

Matric students from the greater Durban area responded well to the spring-school set up by the Ashport Youth Club at the David Landau Community Centre recently.

The club's register indicated an attendance of more than 300 students for the five day programme. Schools in the area and from further afield were well represented.

Subjects offered included English literature, maths and physics.

Allison Govender, one of the organisers said: “These classes were designed to equip the student to tackle the final exams. Senior matric teachers were drafted in to complete revision and suggest methods of answering question papers. Among them were Messrs E. Kamarasen, P. Reddy and Ms P. Pather who gave their services free of charge.

THE FLY

Seth Brundle (Jeff Goldblum), a brilliant but eccentric scientist, meets Veronica Quaife (Geena Davis), a journalist for Particle magazine, at a meet-the-press event held by Bartok Science Industries, the company that provides funding for Brundle's work. Seth takes Veronica back to the warehouse that serves him as both home and laboratory, and shows her a project that will change the world: a set of "Telepods" that allows instantaneous teleportation of an object from one pod to another. Brundle convinces Veronica to keep the project's existence quiet in exchange for exclusive rights to the story, and she begins to document his work. Although the Telepods can transport inanimate objects, they do not work properly on living things, as is demonstrated when a live baboon is turned inside-out during an experiment. Seth and Veronica soon begin a romantic relationship, and their first sexual encounter provides inspiration for Seth, who reprograms the Telepod computer to cope with living creatures. Shortly thereafter, he successfully teleports a second baboon with no apparent harm.

Flushed with this success, Brundle wants to spend a romantic evening with Veronica, but she suddenly departs before they can celebrate. Brundle's judgment soon becomes impaired by alcohol and his paranoid fear that Veronica is secretly rekindling her relationship with her editor and former lover, Stathis Borans (John Getz). In reality, Veronica has left to confront Borans about a veiled threat, spurred by his romantic jealousy of Brundle, to publish the Telepod story without her consent. Upset, Brundle hastily decides to teleport himself in Veronica's absence, unaware that a common housefly has slipped inside the transmitter pod with him. Brundle emerges from the receiving pod, seemingly normal. Seth and Veronica reconcile, and, shortly after his teleportation, Seth begins to exhibit what at first appear to be beneficial effects of the process—such as increased strength, stamina, and sexual potency. He believes this to be a result of the teleportation process "purifying" his body. Veronica, however, is more concerned about Brundle's growing mania, as well as the strange, bristly hairs growing out of a previously-sustained wound in his back. Brundle quickly becomes arrogant and violent, insisting that the teleportation process is like a beneficial drug, and tries to force Veronica to undergo teleportation. When she refuses, he abandons her to indulge in a barroom armwrestling match that leaves his opponent with a compound fracture, and casual sex with a woman named Tawny, whom he picks up at the bar. Veronica's next-morning arrival at the lab spares Tawny from being forcibly teleported by Brundle. After he angrily throws Veronica out and dismisses her concerns about his health, Brundle realizes that something went horribly wrong during his teleportation when his fingernails begin falling off. He checks his computer's records, and discovers that the Telepod computer, confused by the presence of two separate life-forms in the sending pod, merged him with the fly at the molecular-genetic level.

Over the next four weeks, Brundle continues to deteriorate, losing various body parts and becoming progressively less human in appearance. He eventually reaches out to Veronica, and theorizes that he is slowly becoming a hybrid creature that is neither human nor insect (which Seth begins referring to as "Brundlefly"). Brundle soon starts to exhibit fly-like characteristics, such as vomiting digestive enzymes onto his food in order to dissolve it, and the ability to cling to walls and ceilings. He also realizes that he is losing his human reason and compassion, and that he is now being driven by primitive impulses he cannot control. Attempting to find a cure for his condition, Brundle installs a fusion program into the Telepod computer in order to dilute the fly genes in his body with pure human DNA. To her horror, Veronica learns that she is pregnant by Seth, and cannot be sure if the child was conceived before or after his fateful teleportation. After she dreams of giving birth to a giant maggot, a terrified Veronica has Stathis Borans persuade a reluctant doctor to perform an abortion in the middle of the night. However, having learned of the pregnancy, Brundle abducts Veronica before the abortion can be carried out, and begs her to carry the child to term, since it could potentially be the last remnant of his untainted humanity. Veronica sadly refuses, afraid that the child will be a hideous mutant. Meanwhile, Borans breaks into Brundle's lab with a shotgun and comes to Veronica's rescue, but is seriously injured and nearly killed by the almost fully transformed Brundle, who dissolves Borans' left hand and right foot with his corrosive "vomit-drop" enzyme.

Brundle then reveals his desperate, last-ditch plan to Veronica—he will use the three Telepods (the third pod being the original prototype) to fuse himself, Veronica, and their unborn child together into one entity, so they can be the "ultimate family". Veronica frantically resists Brundle's efforts to drag her into Telepod 1 and then accidentally tears off his jaw, triggering his final transformation into a monstrous combination of man and insect. The "Brundlefly" creature traps Veronica inside Telepod 1, then steps into Telepod 2. However, the wounded Borans uses his shotgun to sever the cables connecting Veronica's Telepod to the computer, allowing Veronica to escape unharmed. Breaking out of its own pod just as the fusion process is activated, Brundlefly is gruesomely fused with chunks of metal and other components from Telepod 2. As the mortally wounded Brundlefly-Telepod fusion creature crawls out of the receiving pod, it silently begs Veronica to end its suffering with Borans' shotgun. Veronica hesitates for a moment, then pulls the trigger, killing the creature that was once Seth Brundle, before falling to her knees and weeping for her deceased lover.

Heather Ballim: ...#As_Always Leila....#Profound words indeed Ishaan....

Sibs Veerasamy Naidu: Ishaan, his words to me as well when he called me in London ...very early on a Sunday morning in August 2012. We had a long and lengthy chat. He had every confidence in both you and Buddy ...He couldn't have chosen two more dedicated individuals with so much passion and conviction to take on such a immense project and challenge as The Casbah. Buddy and Ishaan you two have ticked all the boxes.Your mentor guides you'll.

Justin Naidoo: Great words, and a great pic Buddy and Ishaan. Today is exactly a year since the passing of my dad. Those 2 Casbah Icons are smiling down on youll !!!!!

Dave Naidoo Looking at this photo I can imagine the sounds of their voices of so many discussions we had

Dave Naidoo: They were close friends with my dad Nammie and were often at Goodwill Lounge.. I was the "lighty" to them and was subject to much advice and criticism. We were all heavily involved in the promotion of snooker and strived to give it a clean image

Patty Reuben Ellaaurie: Well said!!! Those whom you love and have had a close relationship with, live on through your character

Larry Naidoo: What more is there to say, Buddy, Ishaan, and (Uncle Aziz). You guys have delivered on your commitment to him. All I can say is 'Thank you' and keep up the great work!

Faizal Sahib: Buddy, you said it all in that piece. Indeed, you guys have started something amazing. Connecting people from far and wide through the Casbah is simply awesome. Family ties are really important, this is just what the CASBAH is all about, staying connected. Well done you Two Eshana Suleman: Oh yes Buddy, you coined it in a nutshell.... You and Ishaan have certainly delivered and made our lives so much richer for it. Thank you!

Kausalee Naidoo: Thank you buddy and ishaan.u guys reminded us of our precious times priceless

Preline Jason Naidoo: Hi Buddy yesterday was one year since dad passed away

Maya Lakhani: Well said

Derrick Rodgers: you can never please 100% of people 100% of the time so...forget the moaners n groaners.....just do the best you can that makes you happy!

Amina Vaid Sheikh: Buddy and team well done on the effort taken. We so proud of you and your team. If it was not for Casbah our children would not understand our way of living in the past. Congrats to Casbah !

Zohrana Seedat: you continue to make them proud

THIEVES RAID VEG GARDEN

Thieves in Merebank robbed an elderly couple of their only livelihood recently. When they uprooted the entire vegetable garden and made off with the veggies.

They also broke into their son's motor car taking away the radio and tape and other valuable.

The victims, Mr and Mrs Appalsamy Naidoo, of Rawalpindi Road, also narrowly missed a break-in into their house when the robbers removed the window louvers to gain access.

A slight sound awakened Mr Naidoo 61, who shouted at the would-be intruders who fled into the dark.

The following night the same robbers it is believed, tried to break into the neighbour's house.

Mr Naidoo's son Pregga, heard sounds in the dark and when he switched on his room lights the man fled.

No arrests have been made and the police are investigating.

BLOODY END TO TIGER?

Fans go wild

There was pandemonium at the Westridge Park Tennis Stadium on Saturday night after Indian Wrestling hero Tiger Singh met his match resulting in him being carried out of the ring on a stretcher.

The tag ended in bloodshed after Kevin the magnificent battered Tiger with a chair. Tiger passed out and had to be carried out on a stretcher. This sent the Tiger fans reeling with anger and many went wild hurling chairs and bottles towards the ring. Police as well as the promoters raced to the ring to save Jan Wilkens and Kevin the Magnificent from the madding crowd.

Tiger's tag partner Dannie Brtiz escaped uninjured. Tiger will avenge the blood and gore he suffered when he meets Kevin at a grudge match which is expected to be scheduled shortly. Tiger must now prove to his fans here that no one can 'beat' him.

Among those present at a function at a hotel in Durban last week were Kamal Panday, Manoj Maharaj, Tiger Singh, Ish Maharaj and Ronnie Maharaj. All five are involved in wrestling.

SACOS SPORTS AWARD NEXT WEEK

The 1986 Sacos Sportsperson Award ceremony will be held in Durban next weekend. On Friday 7 November the M.N. Pather Memorial Lecture will be delivered by Mr Ebrahim Patel, the outspoken president of the South African Rugby Union.

The M.N. Pather lecture will be delivered at the David Landau Community Centre in Asherville whilst the Sacos Sportsperson Awards Ceremony will be held at the Pelican Restaurant, Chatsworth. Mr Krish Mackerdhuj, president of the Natal Council of Sport, in releasing the dates for these two events said that both functions would be strictly cultural, without any fanfare and celebrations.

The different national codes affiliated to Sacos will be submitting their nominations for consideration as Sacos Sportsperson for 1986 and it is expected that about 15 leading sports men and woman from all over the country represent.

Whose Cup is it? ACES OR SAINTS?

The Kharwastan-Woodhurst-Umhlathuzana FA which was born at the most difficult time in the old Southern Natal Soccer Board's life has come of age. KUWFA has established itself as one of the best affiliates of Sonakwazsbo both on the field and in administration as well.

From small and difficult beginnings, KUWFA has grown into a 'giant' among Sonakwazsbo's affiliates. A quick glance at the line-up for the Clover Cup finals show very clearly the strength of KUFA and its teams. KUWFA clubs have shown many a club in Sonakwazsbo how it is done in previous Clover Cup competitions but this year the KUWFA clubs have been doing things in grand fashion. For example, take Saints, who in their 21st year could win the 1986 Clover Cup domestic section. Saints, formally of Chatsworth have already won the league, Mainstay and Top Eight competitions at KUWFA, now meet Young Aces of Durban in the finals. Saints have thus far scored 23 goals in the 1986 Clover Cup series whilst conceding only 7.

Anniversary

Bluff Rangers, another household name, is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year, and they too, are in the finals of the Sonakwazsbo division. Bluff Rangers won the Clover Cup in 1984 and two years later Mannie Moodley's team are back in the Clover Cup finals.

It is also interesting to note that for the last four years, KUWFA teams have dominated the Clover cup finals. In 1982 Royals won the Clover Cup and this year Royals lost 1-2 to Bluff Rangers in the semi-finals.

In 1984, Bluff Rangers won, with another KUWFA team, Havenside as runners-up. 1985 again saw two KUWFA teams clash in the finals, with Creedance winning the cup and Royals as runners up. This year Bluff Rangers meet Port Shepstone United in the finals. Syd's Teenagers of Durban have won two cups in the 1986 Clover Cup finals, thus writing themselves into the Clover history. Syd's Teenagers have their Under 18 team that will meet Pirates, also of Durban, in the U18 finals, whilst Syd's Teenagers under 14 team meet Durban Swallows in the U14 finals.

The U16 finals will be played between Brazil and Eagles, of Durban Football Association. Thus the scene is set for a classic Clover Cup finals day at Curries Fountain on Sunday 9 November, as teams from Port Shepstone, KUWFA, Durban and Phoenix battle for Clover Cup honours.

Young Aces - they meet their match in the finals in Durban.
